

LPFM stations would increase media diversity and give schools, churches and other civic organizations a greater voice on the airwaves and in their communities.

The airwaves are supposedly free. Then why do low power FM Stations have so much trouble getting space on the dial? Why do they keep getting equipment confiscated? Your own regulations say you do not license stations under 100 watts, then leave them alone. I can see the problem if they are stepping on a licensed stations frequency, but there are so many Tejano stations here they can't all be licensed.

We need to expand Fm to allow room for Low Power transmissions, giving them dedicated space or expanding the space and allowing a certain amount for local low power transmission.

The First Amendment guarantees us the G-D given right to free speech, yet there is no venue for local issues on radio.

Please help right this wrong and give the air waves back to the people.

Thank you,
Jim
